SATURDAY MARCH SI. 1855 We have received several communica tions discussing the subject of Know Nothingiem which we should publish if c'aborate argument were of any use with such a party. It is simply idle to demonstrate the mischievous tendness cl Know Nothingism. It is not based upon reason, or any notions of justice herctofore common in this age. The Knew Nothings disguise their own connection with the order, and their pulitica action. They meet in secret, bind themselves by oaths to each other, establish pisswo de, and corpeal their objects from the rest of the com

Such an organisation is not defengible. Its members are cumping enough to avoid a discussion of such a point. Trey farnish a triffing excuse, and play mum; better say nothing, as well as know no blug, on such a subject. They pretend that they are opposing the secret order of Jesuits, who are operating political's in this country, and that they are using secreey to coun teract accreay. Every one eces that this is a shabby excuse that will not bear a repetition. Then we are told that other parties has scoret coucases, and conceal their movements from their opponents. This is as poor an excuse as the other. Private meetings of individuals often take place, but they ere no part of party organication, and are scurcely defensible at that. Our peo ple have been very properly jealous of secret movemente-regard them with suspicion. Open bold, and frank organisation and action strike a men as the best security for public interests and individual rights. It has been the purpose of all honest and hosorable men of the old parties to offer as few opportunities as possible for selfi-h and corrupt practices; and the best security agains, them is a full exposure to the eye of the time to marry the widder or wring brother A's manifest; it is apparent to all; and an elaborate argument is a waste of words. Know Nothingsism is a distemper that rages in definee of reason or common sense. It is poor victions have made up their minds to go it blind.

No secret organisation can long exist without becoming corrupt, and victous, and abom nable. Intrigue, chicaniny, and se'fishness, and despot. iem, seek dark and hidden places and opportunities. In despotisms the people only see the blow when it is struck. In the secret brea t of els to widow —." He was reminded that he the monarch, or in the private councils of an oligarchy, the policy is adopted. The secret clubs, before the days of terror in France, concocted the atrocious measures that made their country stream with innocent blood. Such means can do less damage in this country, but it is not from any merit in them. It is only because this country has more power to resist each so evil, and, we hope, less material out of which to work muchief.

The evil of this secret organisation is too |

When the cholera comes the physician wastes kis prescriptions to no purpose. The disease—it made my head wim—run against the size of the usual and appropriate remedies. So with Know Nothingism; men lastinetively resort to reason and argument against the delusion, but you might as well reason with a post as with a Know Nothing. It is equally vain to reason with a Know Nothing about his creed. He is for religious liberty—certeluly be is. He is bound by an oath to proscribe all Catholice from effec; but he is for their equal rights—of course he is. His creed and he was not mere and he professions are self contradictory; that is palpable to all the world; but what of that?

He ca'nt see it; be has got the distumper. We are not, he will tell you, opposed to religious liberty; you know we are not. We opposed to enlist the civil power in behalf of their wicked purposes. The State is in danger—the same old arround the searce of time.
